The Navajo Diaspora

Copyright (c) 2008 by Frank W. Hardy, Ph.D.

Introduction

We think of Navajos as rural people, and on or near the reservation they are. But there are Navajos living in every state of the union except for Alaska, Delaware, Mississippi, Rhode Island, Vermont, and the District of Columbia. Every other state has at least some Navajos. Once these individuals move away from the reservation, they are largely urban. Below we review where the 2000 census says Navajos live, in their various states and counties.

Major Populations

Arizona and New Mexico are the only two states with Navajos in five figures. The Navajo reservation occupies parts of three states (Arizona, New Mexico, Utah). Colorado is immediately adjacent to both San Juan County New Mexico and San Juan County Utah, but there aren't many Navajos in Colorado compared to the reservation states, because across the line into Colorado from both south and west is Ute territory.

States With Large Navajo Population

| State      | Navajos |
|------------|---------|
| Arizona    | 89950   |
| New Mexico | 68790   |
| Utah       | 9375    |
| Colorado   | 2510    |

On a reservation

Within those states which have the largest concentrations of Navajos, six counties entirely contain the main reservation – three in Arizona, two in New Mexico, and one in Utah.

Table 2
The Main Reservation

| State       | County          | City/Town       | Navajos |
|-------------|-----------------|-----------------|---------|
|             | Apache County   |                 | 36775   |
| Arizona     | Navajo County   |                 | 22005   |
|             | Coconino County | Tuba City       | 19900   |
| New Mexico  | McKinley County | Gallup (nearby) | 30900   |
| INEW MEXICO | San Juan County | Shiprock        | 24530   |
| Utah        | San Juan County |                 | 5570    |

In addition to the six counties which contain the main Navajo reservation, there are another six counties that among them contain four smaller reservation-like entities involving Navajos. See table 3.

| Arizona    | La Paz County         |                                   | 110     |
| California | Riverside County      | Colorado River Indian Reservation | 135     |
| Gailloitha | San Bernardino County |                                   | 275     |
|            | Bernalillo County     | Tohajiilee Chapter; Albuquerque   | 5380    |
| New Mexico | Cibola County         | Ramah Chapter; Grants             | 2200    |
|            | Socorro County        | Alamo Chapter                     | 1320    |

A Navajo reservation in California? Well, in a manner of speaking, yes. The Colorado River Indian Reservation (CRIR) is partly in California (two counties), partly in Arizona (one county). This small, outlying reservation lies 195 miles west of Phoenix on highway 95. Some Navajos live there, and have for generations. CRIR is anomalous for more than one reason. It sraddles the Colorado River, for one thing, and brings together Native Americans from four different tribes (Chemehuevi, Hopi, Mojave, Navajo). It is home to a total of 9201 people, 3389 of whom are registered members of rheir respective tribes. The Navajos who live at CRIR stay in touch with the rest of the tribe farther east, driving long distances in order to do so. As one can see from Table 2, only 520 of the 3389 individuals (15.3%) who make up the Colorado River Indian Tribes are Navajo.

The remaining three counties listed in table 3 represent the Tohajiilee, Ramah, and Alamo chapters. Tohajiilee Chapter (formerly known as Cañoncito Chapter) $^2$  is located in Bernalillo County. Of the 5380 Navajos living in Bernalillo County, 1649 live on this small reservation. Presumably the remaining 3731 live mostly in Albuquerque. The population of Ramah Chapter is 1676, so Navajos living elsewhere in Cibola County (2200 -1676 = 524) are probably concentrated in or near Grants. The total population of the Alamo Chapter is 2000, but only 1320 Navajos live there, so one would infer that there are 680 non-Navajos living on that reservation as well.

Off the reservation

Arizona. Every county in Arizona, except two (Greenlee, Santa Cruz), has at least some Navajos. And every county in Arizona which has Navajos, except two (Gila, Graham), has them in at least three figures. See table 4 below.

Table 4
Other Arizona Counties With Navajo Populations
Equal to or Greater Than 100

| County          | City             | Navajos |
|-----------------|------------------|---------|
| Maricopa County | Phoenix          | 8880    |
| Pinal County    | 1 HOCHIX         | 315     |
| Pima County     | Tucson           | 955     |
| Yavapai County  | Prescott         | 375     |
| Cochise County  | Sierra Vista (?) | 250     |
| Mohave County   | Kingman          | 180     |
| Yuma County     | Yuma             | 105     |

Counties omitted from table 4 include Apache, Navajo, and Coconino, which together take in the Arizona portion of the main Navajo reservation and La Paz County, which contains the Arizona portion of the Colorado River Indian Reservation. These were discussed earlier.

It would appear from table 4 that many of those Arizona Navajos who do not live on reservations live in cities. Maricopa County and Pinal County contain Greater Phoenix, Pima County containts Tucson, Yavapai County contains Prescott, Mohave County contains Kingman, and Yuma County contains Yuma. The only town that could be called an urban center in Cochise County is Sierra Vista.

New Mexico. In table 5 (below) it would appear that many of those New Mexico Navajos who live off reservation live in cities (Santa Fe, Las Cruces, Las Vegas). Otero County remains a mystery to me. The 160 Navajos living there are either in the town of Alamogordo or on the Mescalero Apache Indian Reservation nearby.

| San Miguel County | Las Vegas   | 160     |
| Otero County      | Alamogordo? | 160     |

Utah. As in Arizona and New Mexico, most Utah counties have at least some Navajos and the counties that do, seem to cluster around urban centers. Salt Lake County, Davis County, and Tooele County all contain parts of Greater Salt Lake City. Washington County contains Saint George, Utah County contains Provo, Weber County contains Ogdon, Grand County contains Moab – although some Navajo residents of this county might well be living rurally, Iron County contains Cedar City, and Sevier County contains Richfield, although Richfield is a pretty small place. The point to notice is there is not a continuous belt of Navajo residents extending from the reservation to any of these places, with the possible exception of Moab. Instead the population numbers cluster around areas which contain urban centers.

Colorado. Colorado has a number of counties with Navajo populations, but these are not anywhere near as numerous as those in Arizona, New Mexico, and Utah. Notice that Denver County, Arapahoe County, Jefferson County, and Adams County all contribute to Greater Denver. In addition there are Navajo enclaves or scattered families in Cortez and surrounding areas, Colorado Springs, and Durango. Colorado has no Navajos living on reservation lands. Southern Colorado is basically Ute territory.

| La Plata County  | Durango          | 390     |

Minor Populations

California. Once we leave the four corners area, California has the largest Navajo population, due in part to the fact that some Navajos live on the Colorado River Indian Reservation, which occupies a corner of both Riverside County and San Bernardino County. But this is not the end of the story as regards California. There are also small Navajo populations in Los Angeles, San Diego, and San Francisco. See table 8 below.

Table 8
California Counties With Navajo Populations
Equal to or Greater Than 100

| County               | City          | Navajos |
|----------------------|---------------|---------|
| Los Angeles County   | Los Angeles   | 335     |
| Orange County        | LUS Allyeles  | 100     |
| San Diego County     | San Diego     | 410     |
| Alameda County       | San Francisco | 110     |
| San Francisco County | San Francisco | 100     |

Other states. So far we have discussed Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Colorado, and California. Beyond this, 18 other states have Navajo populations in three figures. See table 9 below.

Table 9 Other States With Navajo Populations Equal to or Greater Than 100

| County         | Navajos |

| Texas          | 595     |
| Nevada         | 555     |
| Washington     | 445     |
| Oklahoma       | 435     |
| Idaho          | 265     |
| Ohio           | 240     |
| Kansas         | 240     |
| Oregon         | 230     |
| North Carolina | 220     |
| Wyoming        | 180     |
| Georgia        | 175     |
| Missouri       | 155     |
| Montana        | 140     |
| Virginia       | 135     |
| Kentucky       | 130     |
| Illinois       | 125     |
| Nebraska       | 120     |
| Louisiana      | 100     |

Of the states listed in table 8, six have individual counties with Navajo populations equal to or greater than 100. See tables 10 and 11 below.

Nevada has two such counties (Clark and Washoe) and Ohio, Oklahoma, Texas, and Washington state all have one each. Notice that all of these counties contain a major urban center. Thus, Las Vegas and Reno are in the counties which contain the largest numbers of Navajos in Nevada; and similar observations can be made for Columbus, Ohio; Tulsa, Oklahoma; Dallas, Texas; and Olympia, Washington.

| Washington | Thurston County | Olympia  | 110     |

Conclusion

With a handful of exceptions, such as Tuba City, Shiprock, and Window Rock, Navajos on the reservation live rurally. Once they move off the reservation, however, this rule is reversed. When they go elsewhere, Navajos tend to be urban. See appendix.

Appendix 1 Cities Where Navajos Live

Below we summarize our city data by state, by city, and by the number of Navajos possibly living in the respective cities or towns.

In table 12, city names marked with an asterisk contain data from either more or from less than one county. Thus, Greater Phoenix includes all or part of both Maricopa and Pinal counties; the population figure for Albuquerque includes data from Bernalillo County apart from Tohajiilee Chapter, just outside of town; Greater Salt Lake City includes all or part of Salt Lake, Davis, and Tooele counties; Greater Denver includes all or part of Adams, Arapahoe, Denver, and Jefferson counties; Greater Los Angeles includes all or part of Los Angeles and Orange counties; and Greater San Francisco includes all or part of Alameda and San Francisco counties.
